

I am just searching for information on Shared Living. My wife and I are both 69 and caring for my younger brother who is 67. We are all on Social Security which does not go very far. And, the Democrats have declared that there is no inflation in this country, so they have stopped our yearly "cost of living increase". So, now, what are we to do?

We gave up our positions and home in New York and moved here to care for my brother. Our funds are running low and we are trying to find out what we can do in the future to save our family homestead.
